

Create a Civilization Mix up

One of the most important concepts of world history is the interaction between civilizations. From wars and trading agreements to competing for resources and trading resources, civilizations come in contact with each other all over the world. Meet with two other people to discuss your civilizations and evaluate how they would interact. After comparing your civilizations, you will understand how important foreign affairs are and how cultural diffusion works.

As you compare civilizations, answer the following questions together. Complete the homework paragraphs explained below and turn in TWO PARAGRAPHS and this WORKSHEET.

Homework: After you have answered the questions below, write a formal agreement in a full paragraph (5-7 sentences) about the relationship between your two civilizations. Include the above information as support for whether or not your civilizations would interact peacefully or not. Be sure that your paragraph includes a topic sentence and details to support it.

Partner's Name _____

Civilization Name _____

1. What continent is their civilization on?
2. Describe the specific location they choose for their civilization?
3. Do you think they made a good choice in locations, and why or why not?
4. What is their capital city known for?
5. Describe the type of government they have?
6. Ask them why they chose that form of government over others?
7. Describe how they use the military?
8. Are men and women equal in their civilization, and how do you know?
9. Describe their religious practices?
10. What group of people are at the top of their social structure?
11. What language do they speak?
12. What talents do they value in their civilization?
13. Based on your first impression of their civilization, would you be comfortable living there? Why, or why not?